PRESIDENT WILSON AND LOYD-GEORGE HAVE A SATISFACTORY MEETING

By Robert J. Bender
London, Dec. 27.—Great strides toward amicable settlement of highly important peace preliminaries were made today when President Wilson, Premier Lloyd-George and Foreign Secretary Balfour conferred at Buckingham Palace.

This was the distinct understanding at the conclusion of the conversation. President Wilson met the British leaders in his apartment. The session lasted an hour and a half.

The league of nations, freedom of the seas and possibly the Russian situation were known to have been scheduled for discussion.

The president is known to have "got down to cases" with the Premier. Before Wilson returns to Paris, each will know the others views on such vital questions as freedom of the seas, indemnities, the Russian situation, disarmament, conscription and the league of nations.

The league of nations purposely is named last, since the steady swerving of British governmental opinion during the last ten days in favor of a definitely league organization apparently has left little to be desired from Wilson's standpoint.

The United Press is able to announce that Lord Cecil's interview with Lowell Mellett regarding the league of nations embodies the views of the British cabinet. It is equally certain that the plans, as outlined to Mellett, were presented to Wilson today for consideration.

As the president and the British ministers came down the steps of the palace shortly after noon they were in high good humor. They departed at once for Downing street where they lunched with British statesmen and American Ambassador Davis.

WILSON PLANS VAST PROJECT FOR RELIEF AND REHABILITATION OF WAR SUFFERERS

President Wilson, at the peace conference, is taking the lead in mapping out a comprehensive program to provide relief for suffering all over the world and the rehabilitation of the victims of the war. To help him in laying his plans before the peace conference he has summoned three nationally known men from Washington. They are Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of the war industries board; Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the war trade board, and Henry P. Davison, chairman of the war council of the Red Cross. Davison is now on his way to France and the other men are to follow him.

QUESTIONNAIRES DISTRIBUTED TO DETERMINE WHO WANT DISCHARGES

By Webb Miller.
With the American Army of Occupation, Dec. 27.—The distribution among officers of questionnaires asking whether they desire to remain in the army or return to civil life has set thousands of them wondering what they will do when there is no longer use for them in the army.

A canvass among the men who have led doughboys, artillerymen, flyers and all other branches of the service, disclosed that the great majority have filled in their blanks with a desire to return at once to civilian life. At least 50 per cent of these, it was declared, will return to their homes, ready to tackle some new pursuit. They regard the war as the turning point in their lives, offering them an opportunity to start anew.

Many are uncertain as to what occupations they will select when they get back to the states. Younger officers, as well as enlisted men who have not had the advantage of college education, or who have not completed courses, will go to school. Many others are determined to go west or south from eastern points.

The war will be the cause of a great shifting in occupation, especially among the younger men.

Approximately one-fourth of the men questioned declared intention to make a change.

Every man of the 94th aerial squadron, comprising 30 American aces, filled out blanks asking discharges. Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, ace of aces, said he is uncertain what business he will try when he gets back. "Automobile racing will be pretty slow for me hereafter," he said. "I may start an aviation school or interest myself in the manufacture of airplanes."

Jimmy Meisner, Brooklyn, second among the American aces, and who interrupted his college career to enter the army, probably will resume his studies in the junior year.

Captain Douglas Campbell, declared things are uncertain with him, as "everything looks tame now."

Not a one of the score of aviators interviewed intends to pursue aviation after the war as a business.

With regards to the aerial mail service, Meisner said:

"I have not heard a single flyer intending to enter the mail service. There are only two kinds of flying worthwhile now—war or pleasure. Aerial mail service flying will be merely high class chauffeurage."

"It will be a monotonous life to fly back and forth between two points. There is little left to pleasure flying after becoming accustomed to war flying. It is less fun than automobile riding because you can't see much."

Many are uncertain as to what occupations they will select when they get back to the states. Younger officers, as well as enlisted men who have not had the advantage of college education, or who have not completed courses, will go to school. Many others are determined to go west or south from eastern points.

The war will be the cause of a great shifting in occupation, especially among the younger men.

PROMINENT CLARK COUNTY HORSEMAN DIES OF INFLUENZA

Springfield, Dec. 27.—The body of John L. Snyder, noted horseman and proprietor of the Park farm, west of the city, who died in a hospital in Chicago, was brought to this city yesterday.

The time of the funeral will not be arranged until Mrs. Snyder and Mr. Snyder's parents return home.

The death of Mr. Snyder comes as a shock to his hundreds of friends in Clark county, while horsemen all over the country will mourn the loss of the man who was a leader in the breeding of light harness horses.

Just ten days ago, Mr. Snyder, in company with a number of other horsemen from Springfield, left for Chicago, to attend the big horse sale which opened the following day in that city. Tuesday he went out to the sale, but complained of being ill and returned to the hotel, where the house physician was called.

It was decided to remove him to the Lincoln hospital, where his death occurred.

PULL THEIR OWN CORKS
Chicago, Dec. 27.—Chicago New Year revelers may have to yank their own corks. Two thousand waiters today were threatening to strike and take out with them 1,100 union cooks unless the wage row with downtown hotel proprietors has been settled before Tuesday. The trouble came up over hiring waitresses to assist with expected New Year's Eve crowds.

WOMEN JOIN IN DEFENSE OF THE ROYAL PALACE

Amsterdam, Dec. 27.—Sailors who mutinied and fortified themselves in the royal palace, have surrendered, according to a Berlin dispatch, dated Tuesday.

They were given their liberty by Otto Weis, city commandant, who is a majority socialist, the message said.

London, Dec. 27.—Wives and sweethearts of the mutinous German sailors have seized rifles and joined in the defense of the royal palace, against the civil guard, according to a dispatch filed in Berlin, Wednesday night, and received by the Express today.

Although the sailors were technically arrested, they refuse to leave the city, and announced they will continue to support Chancellor Ebert, who permits them to remain.

"The city is on the verge of anarchy and fighting is expected to continue," the dispatch says.

DOZEN PERSONS ARE SAVED FROM DEATH IN FIRE

Newark, Ohio, Dec. 27.—A dozen persons were rescued by firemen early today when fire damaged Paul Bowser's rooming house and gymnasium here.

Trapped on the second floor, Mrs. Bowser, her sister, Mrs. Harry Cates, and her mother, Mrs. Emma Tubbs, were carried down ladders in their night clothing by firemen.

Fire Chief Lewis found F. B. Hanson, a soldier, asleep in a room on the third floor, after all other occupants had been rescued. He escaped. Several firemen were overcome by smoke.

The blaze was caused from an overheated furnace. The flames swept through all floors of the stone and frame building.

SHOOTING IS TOO GOOD FOR KAISER

London, Dec. 27.—Shooting the former kaiser and his co-conspirators against world peace would be letting them off too easy, in the opinion of Richard Barth, socialist member of the German government.

The best punishment would be to make them rebuild Belgium and Northern France, he declared, in an interview with the Berlin correspondent of the Express.

"Personally, I believe the war originated in Berlin," said Barth, "the main reason being that the kaiser wanted to rule the world."

"The others responsible are the crown prince, Admiral Von Tirpitz and General Von Falkenstein."

"The punishment cannot be too severe. The allies may try them and shoot them, but I think the best punishment would be to make them rebuild Belgium and Northern France."

HOTEL WORKERS TO GO ON STRIKE

New York, Dec. 27.—The New York Hotel workers union has set New Year's Eve as the time for a general strike.

Fifteen thousand hotel and restaurant workers in Manhattan have decided to walk out unless the hotel association grants their demands for a wage increase.

GERMAN SOCIALIST SAYS LEAGUE OF NATIONS IMPOSSIBLE

London, Dec. 27.—In direct contradiction of opinions recently expressed by other German officials, Richard Barth, socialist member of the government, declared in an interview with the Berlin correspondent of the Express that freedom of the seas is "non-essential" and that the league of

AUTOS COLLIDE

R. R. Grieve's automobile was badly damaged when a car driven by two men from the vicinity of Lumberton, crashed into the Grieve machine as it stood in front of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Babb, on East Second street, Christmas day.

The two men in the car which caused the damage are said to have been intoxicated. The car collided head on with the Grieve machine, and the faces of the two men were cut and scratched by flying splinters of glass. Both cars were damaged.

GREAT BRITAIN IS DETERMINED TO HAVE GREAT LEAGUE OF NATIONS FORMED AT THE PEACE CONGRESS

By Lowell Mellett.
London, Dec. 27.—Great Britain not only is willing but is determined that the peace congress shall organize a permanent league of nations before its adjournment.

Lord Robert Cecil, foremost British authority on this subject made this clear in an interview with the United Press today. Cecil said he had never entertained any notion of the peace delegates simply giving the league of nations idea their blessing and leaving the details to be worked out in the future. On the contrary, he wants no opening left for possible failure of the league to materialize.

Investigation in government circles reveals that Cecil is speaking the British government's mind as well as his own.

"Now we know the horror of war," he said. "A year from now the old gladiator may return. We must guard against this possibility."

Cecil gave the following provisions as the necessary foundations of the league:

First—A permanent secretariat.

Second—A fixed place of meeting.

Third—Periodical meetings. These meetings must include as working members, men able to speak for the peoples of their countries such as premiers and foreign ministers, or their equivalent. Meetings must be held at least once a year.

Fourth—It is essential that no war shall be possible until it is discussed, either at the periodical meeting or at a meeting especially called for the purpose.

"These are the vital things," Cecil said. "Of course as I recently outlined, the league must have non-contentious as well as contentious features. It must have broader purposes than merely prevention of wars. It must have administrative powers, as well as authority to settle disputes."

It is impossible yet to get the closely guarded British official views of freedom of the seas.

Other important principles of the peace settlement are freely discussed however. In regard to conscription, a high government official suggested to the United Press that the fact that Germany's millions of trained men are still available renders abolition of conscription in other European countries more difficult than at first appeared.

The official designated to prepare the government's case on disarmament, pointed out that it is necessary to devise a system to prevent fabrication of armaments and airplane parts in factories manufacturing peace time products.

"It all involves the necessity for accepting Germany's word," he said. "If a way can be found to make her word good the problem will be solved. Otherwise the difficulties of preventing trickery are almost insuperable."

Indemnities are also serious issues. It is known that President Wilson holds to his determination to keep to the armistice agreement. Since the recent elections little has been heard here in regard to compensation Germany to pay the whole cost of the war.

IMMEDIATE ALLIED INTERVENTION ONLY SOLUTION RUSSIAN PROBLEM

Washington, Dec. 27.—Increase of allied military forces in Russia for policing, but no intervention, was today given serious thought here and abroad.

The disposition here is against large scale intervention lest that should develop into war. The whole problem, is likely to crystallize now that President Wilson has consulted with British leaders.

ger, which the allies and neutrals do not yet appreciate.

"The quicker the allies intervene the smaller will be the necessary expeditionary force required. Two hundred thousand men will now down the bolshevik while if it is postponed a large force will be needed."

POLAND TO SEND ULTIMATUM TO HUNS

Paris, Dec. 27.—"The only solution of the Russian problem is immediate intervention," Prince Levoff, first Russian premier after the revolution, declared in an interview with the United Press today. He suggested that the United States and Japan should furnish the armies.

"I appreciate fully the disinclination of the allied peoples, after four years of war, to intervene in far-away Russia, but the allies must understand that unless the Bolsheviks are conquered the insidious propaganda they are spreading throughout the world inevitably will again menace the world's peace."

"Only we who have just come from Russia realize the extent of the danger."

Zurich, Dec. 27.—The Polish government has decided to issue an ultimatum to Germany, demanding revocation of the prohibition against East Prussia's participating in the elections for the Polish National Assembly, according to dispatches received here today.

Encouraging reports are being received from other central Ohio communities. Health authorities estimate there have been more than 60,000 cases here since October, with a death toll of 813.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Recent snows and cold weather is aiding in stamping out the influenza epidemic in Illinois, health authorities said today. In the last 48 hours, there were 43 deaths from influenza and 36 from pneumonia in Chicago. High records had been 340 deaths per day.

FARMER IS TRAMPLED TO DEATH BY HORSE

Trampled beneath the hoofs of a horse, the terribly mangled body of John Miller, a bachelor farmer, was found in a stall in the stable at his farm south east of Fairfield on the Byron road, Thursday morning.

His nephew Edward Smith, who was attracted by the unrest among the cattle on the Miller farm, investigated and found his uncle's body. It was trampled almost beyond recognition. Mr. Miller was in Osborn Tuesday afternoon, but no one saw him later, and it is thought that his death occurred soon after he returned home. Circumstances indicate that he was thrown down by the horse when he entered the stall to feed the animal, and that he was then trampled to death by the animal.

Mr. Miller was 58 years of age, and always lived in Bath township, being one of a large family. His mother died some time ago, and since then he had lived alone. A sister, Mrs. Ben Smith, mother of the young man who found the body, lives within sight of the Miller home.

The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Warren Morris, and will be removed, Saturday afternoon to the home of a brother, Frank Miller at New Carlisle. The funeral will be held there Sunday morning at ten o'clock.

DR. HENRY MITCHELL MCCrackEN PROMINENT FORMER XENIAN DEAD

Dr. Henry Mitchell McCracken, chancellor emeritus of New York University, a former Xenian and a brother of Miss Anna McCracken of this city, died at Orlando, Florida Tuesday. He passed away in the presence of his wife and elder son, John H. McCracken, who is president of Lafayette College. The funeral was held at 11 o'clock Friday morning in the auditorium at University Heights with Dr. George Alexander in charge.

Dr. McCracken was born in Oxford, Ohio, Sept. 28, 1840, and graduated from Miami University at the age of 17 having entered the university at the age of 13. He later attended the Xenia Theological Seminary and the Seminary at Princeton and was ordained a Presbyterian minister. While in Xenia he taught Greek and Latin in the High School here.

He was given the degree of L. L. D. by Miami University and later studied abroad at the Universities of Tubingen and Wittenberg, receiving the degree D. D. from the latter institution. He preached in Ohio for eight years but in 1881 began educational career when he was appointed Professor of Philosophy in Western University of Pennsylvania, now the University of Pittsburgh. He was called to New York University in 1884 when that institution was yet in its infancy. Rev. Dr. John Hall was then chancellor and in order not to displace him, the position of vice-chancellor was created and given to Dr. McCracken, which position he held for seven years when Dr. Hall voluntarily withdrew and Dr. McCracken took his place. Dr. McCracken reconstructed the system of education of the University instituting a number of radical reforms. It was at this time that the University was removed from Washington Square to University Heights its present location.

Under the guidance of Dr. McCracken the University grew from a College of 91 students and one faculty of ten members to a University of over 4,000 students and eight faculties containing 256 instructors. Financially the growth was in proportion. In 1884 the University had property to the value of $547,500 and an annual income of $26,273. In 1908 the year before Dr. McCracken retired, the property valuation was $5,211,321 and its annual income of $434,378. Dr. McCracken retired on his seventieth birthday, Sep. 28, 1910, and immediately started a tour of the world.

Besides the son, John McCracken who has been President of Lafayette College since 1915 he leaves another son, Henry McCracken who has been President of Vassar for the same length of time.

Elmer E. Brown, present chancellor of the University, said of him: "Chancellor McCracken was a man of extraordinary vision and imagination, of great tenacity of purpose and virility in execution, and the complete transformation of New York University under his leadership was a public service that can never be forgotten."

Secretary of Treasury Glass Says War Savings Stamps to Continue.

Washington, D. C.—(Special.)—In his first public statement since succeeding Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Carter Glass expresses confidence that the American people will in nowise relax their efforts toward meeting the government's immediate financial requirements. Secretary Glass announces that plans for meeting expenditures, as outlined by former Secretary McAdoo, including the offering of another Liberty loan, the continuing sale of War Savings Stamps certificates and the retaining of organizations for the sale of such securities, will be carried out.

"I am sure that the treasury department can, with confidence, offer another Liberty loan," said the statement, which was addressed to the American people, "and continue the sale of War Savings Certificates, knowing that the organizations will respond once more to the call for service and will at once prepare the ground and sow the seed so that the harvest may be abundantly fruitful."

Mother of Thousands.
The destruction wrought on all but the hardest wood by the white ant, or termite, is not surprising when a few facts are known of its prolific character. A nest, some six feet in height, was found in the tropics, and about one foot below the level of the ground was a conical mound of hard earth. Inside this dwelt the queen mother. After careful observation she was found to lay 9,120 eggs in an hour. On account of her great size she was unable to leave her cell, her only function being to lay eggs.

When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomachache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown ups printed on each bottle.

That long drive through the biting zero winds will be lots pleasanter if you know there's a Caloric furnace keeping the house warm. A Caloric will hold the heat for hours. You can step from the icy outdoors into a comfortable kitchen and be warmed in a jiffy. Every room is uniformly warmed. You are saved the muss and fuss of stoves at no additional cost because the heats economically by a scientific method following nature's way. We have hundreds of letters proving the satisfaction it gives.

PIPELESS CALORIC FURNACE
The Original Patented Pipeless Furnace

It's a one register furnace. No pipes to clutter your cellar. It can easily be installed in any house new or old because you don't have to cut holes for pipes or flues. This saves expense, gives you more cellar room and there's no heat in the cellar to spoil produce.

The Caloric puts furnace heat within the reach of all. It saves carrying fuel and ashes up and down stairs and lessens fire danger to house and children. Your house is warm when you go to bed and warm when you get up. Danger of colds is reduced because every room is uniformly heated. The Caloric burns coal, coke or wood and is guaranteed to

Save 35% Fuel

Because, let the warm air reaches your rooms by nature's direct method of circulation and there are no pipes to absorb or resist the heat. And our double ribbed fireproof and especially patented combustion chamber produce perfect combustion, thus insuring thorough burning of the fuel and a much greater heating surface. And our specially patented triple casing, insulated with two air spaces, prevents any heat from radiating into the basement. This is the only successful one register furnace and no other furnace can claim these three big features. Guaranteed by us and by the manufacturers, The Monitor Stove & Range Co. MISS ARMSTRONG GIVES CHARMING YULETIDE PARTY

Miss Dorothy Armstrong was hostess at an attractive Yuletide party her home on East Church street Thursday afternoon, when she announced to a coterie of twenty girl friends, the engagement of Miss Eleanor Tresslar, to Walter Patton, of Springfield, an overseas secretary for the Young Men's Christian Association.

The interesting announcement was cleverly made in an original bit of verse which one of the guests read aloud to the rest of the company. It gave the information also that the marriage of Miss Tresslar to Mr. Patton will take place in January, but the date was not given.

The betrothal of Miss Tresslar to Mr. Patton is touched with an extremely interesting bit of romance. Their acquaintance was made while both were students at Antioch college. After his graduation, Mr. Patton became Y. M. C. A. secretary at Washington, D. C. A year ago he enlisted for Y. work overseas, and was sent to France. He recently arrived in this country on a leave of absence, but expects to return to France soon after his marriage, to continue his work, and he will be joined there in the spring by his bride.

Miss Tresslar who is a member of the High School Faculty, as instructor in mathematics, will continue her work here until she is ready to sail for France to be with her husband. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Tresslar.

At Miss Armstrong's home Thursday afternoon, the decorations were of holly, and other Christmas greens. Cake, ice and mints were served.

From out-of-town the guests were four sisters of Mr. Patton, Mrs. Millard Metcalf and the Misses Nelle, Ruth and Jeannette Patton of Springfield, and Miss Mary Strickland, of DePue.

The importance attached to his visit is indicated by the decision of Queen Mother Alexandra to remain in London with her two daughters until after Wilson's visit. CHARGES AGAINST HER ARE DENIED IN CROSS PETITION

In an answer and cross petition for divorce which was filed Thursday, Mrs. Tony Bille strenuously denies the charges brought against her, and makes counter charges of cruelty and neglect.

The woman who threw nitric acid in her husband's face, Tuesday night, declared in her petition that shortly after their marriage she went to West Virginia to live with her husband who was employed in a coal mine. She says that she was compelled to take in boarders, and do all the work, and that her husband appropriated the money. Upon their return here, she says, she had to work in the cordage mills and earned $12 a week, of which her husband took all with the exception of $4 which she paid to her mother to support her child by a former marriage. She didn't have enough left to buy her clothes.

She declares that last November 27, he knocked her down in the street, and then ran away, leaving her to be taken home by a friend who heard the commotion. She says that he has threatened to kill her. That one time he drew a knife across her throat from ear to ear, and another time hid a razor under his pillow, and a hatchet under the head of the bed. She says that he has taken all the furniture, most of it bought with her money, and part of her clothing and left her destitute. She asked for temporary alimony and an injunction restraining him from interfering with her. W. F. Trader is her attorney. The petition was drawn before the acid throwing episode.

ELBERT W. LEWIS DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Elbert Weaver Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis, of the New Hope neighborhood, died there at four o'clock, Thursday afternoon.

The young man had been in ill health for two years. Three weeks ago he developed influenza, which went into pneumonia, causing death. Mr. Lewis was born April 6, 1889, and was thus 29 years of age at the time of his death. He was graduated from Cassarock High School in the class of 1915. Besides his parents he is survived by one brother, Harry Lewis, and by his grandmother, Mrs. Robert Weaver.

The funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, at the Eleazar church, and burial will be made in Woodland cemetery.

A Torch of One's Own.
As Plutarch tells us, "It is well to go for a light to another man's fire, but not to carry it to him." A torch of one's own! That is a possession worth having, whether it be a flaming beacon on the hilltop or a tiny taper in the window. We cannot tell how far a little candle throws its beams, nor who is laying his course by its flickering light. The most that we can do—and it is also the least that we should do—is to tend the flame carefully and to keep it steady.—Braucher Matthews.

1,500,000 SOLDIERS OF FRANCE KILLED

25 per cent of the French army has been killed in battle, another 25 per cent have been seriously wounded. This terrible sacrifice of half its magnificent army has been freely made by heroic France that liberty might live. The world and especially America, owes France an enormous debt of gratitude, not only for this, but for the discovery by French peasants of a perfect remedy for stomach, liver and intestinal disorders which is reported to have saved many thousands of lives the world over, prevented innumerable surgical operations and alleviated incalculable suffering. Geo. H. Mayr, a leading Chicago Chemist, imports the ingredients and sells this remedy in America under the name of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sayre & Hemphill and druggists everywhere. adv

Entered as second class mail matter act of March 3rd, 1879.

THE COMING REPUBLICAN CONGRESS.

The National Republican Congressional committee, of which our own member of the House, Dr. Simeon D. Fess, was chairman, has issued an address of congratulation to the party for the marked result of the campaign that ended November 5th. The Republican majority in the House is about forty-five, surely large enough for any practical purposes. The Senate is also claimed Republican by two.

The responsibilities that will thus come to the party are exceedingly great, but they are welcomed by the opportunity for substantial service to the country. A united party, all imbued with the spirit of service, is bound to show its mark in the next two years. It is no putty-faced party.

The whole world knows what the Republican party has done for this great country, and the whole world knows the names of the famous men of the past, Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft—a galaxy of names unprecedented in the annals of any nation. It is to the successors of these great men that the party now commits the political interests of the country and the universal feeling is that no mistake was made by the voters on Nov. 5th.

To solve all the manifold, intricate problems that will confront the country in the coming two years, the National committee feels that the voters have done a good job in transforming the majority politics of Congress.

The committee solicits the assistance and co-operation of all men and women who are prompted by high motives and patriotic purposes to assist in the discharge of the great duties that will devolve upon the party. It is known that the service of Chairman Fess in bringing the result in November, is highly appreciated by his fellow members of the committee, as well as by the party at large. He is not aspiring to the Speakership of the next Congress, but many of his friends are largely using his name in that connection and it would be a graceful acknowledgment of his splendid service if their wish should turn into a reality.

ALIEN PROPERTY HERE MAY PAY U. S. CLAIMS.

A recommendation that all claims of American citizens for losses sustained through seizure of their property in Germany and Austria shall be paid out of the funds derived from the sale of enemy property in the United States has been made by A. Mitchell Palmer, the alien property custodian. The program will be discussed at the Peace Conference.

Mr. Palmer, in effect, does not see any justice in turning over to German interests the proceeds of sales of enemy property in the United States and, then requiring American citizens to file claims with the German Government for return of their property or reimbursement for it. He appreciates the prolonged legal processes which Americans would have to pursue to establish the legality of their claims, and the even longer delays in the actual collection of what might be allowed them. In some instances twenty-five to forty years might be required for a final settlement.

Mr. Palmer estimates the total value of enemy property taken over by him will run close to $800,000,000. The trusts now being administered exceed $500,000,000 and final valuation in cases now being investigated, it is believed, will bring the total to that estimated by Mr. Palmer.

Everyday Etiquette

"In sending out announcements after a wedding should it be proper to send only those of town relatives and friends?" asked Mabel.

"Announcements are sent to those whom the bride and bridegroom wish to retain on their calling list and whom they wish to notify of the happy event," answered her mother.

Mrs. Austin's Pocky Flour is fine ready in a jiffy. Great big package for 25c.

STAGGERING BLOW TO GERMAN HOPES FOR FUTURE TRADE.

The government has decided to purchase the North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American Line piers at Hoboken, which now are held in title by the alien property custodian as trustee for the German owners. Definite announcement of the decision and the purchase price will be made within a few days.

The enormous facilities are being operated for war purposes by the Government under the commandeering power voted by Congress last March, but the permanent ownership of the properties had not been settled until the decision was reached for Government ownership. Proceeds of the sale will be held either by A. Mitchell Palmer, alien property custodian, or the Treasurer of the United States, for account of the enemy owners.

Besides offering a body blow to German hopes for restoration of her commerce with the United States after the war and depriving the leading German steamship lines of their most valuable shipping properties in this country, the purchase by the Government it is maintained, opens a broad prospect in relation to Government control of the American merchant marine after the war.

"THE WIFE"

BY JANE PHELPS

RUTH IS DISAPPOINTED IN BRIAN'S LETTER.

CHAPTER CXXV.

Now followed a period of waiting for Ruth—waiting for Brian's letter in reply to the one she had written about the baby. She watched nervously for the reported arrival of ships; and was disappointed in not hearing from him—long before it would have been possible for a letter to reach her.

Mandel wondered at the change in her; at her repressed manner. "She is anxious over something," he said to himself, just as he had said a short time before. "She is unhappy over something," then set himself to think of something to divert her.

Arthur Mandel longed for Ruth, yet his thought for her was singularly unselfish. The great melting pot of war, and war activities, had ennobled the man. He longed to see her happy, regardless of his own love for her. And whenever he saw her looking worried or anxious, he almost cursed Brian because of it.

He constantly gave her all the consideration possible in her work, but even so she carried a great deal of responsibility. He often wondered what she should have done in this crisis without her. Many of his clerks were either overseas or in camps. Some had volunteered, others had been drafted. Like other business men, he was slowly replacing them either with men above the draft age, or with women. But it takes time to induct new help into such an establishment; and mistakes are costly. So Ruth often went home weary in body and mind.

Little Brian was growing fast, and Mrs. Clayborne said, bid fair to be entirely spoiled when he became old enough to take advantage. Old Rachel worshipped her "little Massa" and Ruth idolized him. Mrs. Clayborne loved him dearly; although in her heart she regretted that he was growing to resemble Brian.

"I wish he had looked like Ruth," she often murmured when she looked at the tiny features.

True to her determination, she tried to make things more lively for Ruth. She invited first Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, then Mr. and Mrs. Roberts in for cards, and occasionally to dinner. They were almost the only friends Ruth had made, so their circle was necessarily limited. Then once in a while she would ask Mr. Mandel. She was often puzzled by his manner when with Ruth. That he loved her niece, she knew; but that he was becoming so unselfish in that love that Ruth's happiness, not his own, was his first consideration, she had not realized.

When finally a letter came from Brian, Ruth's hand trembled so she scarcely could open it. To her almost unbearable disappointment it was not in reply to the one telling him he was a father, but a belated one written about the time she had sent her own.

Tears of disappointment filled her eyes.

HE DID!

eyes as she read. Then a fear took possession of her; fear that Brian might never know. He had expected to be sent from the place where she had addressed the letter; and more than half expected, as he expressed it—to be in the fighting line when she received the letter.

He was plainly enthusiastic over the idea—rebellious because of the long waiting. He pictured the exploits of some of the men who had gone over the top with honor and safety in glowing terms; and spoke of those who had gone West in the discharge of their duty as fortunate to have the privilege to die for their country.

Then he spoke again of Mollie. He told how she cheered the wounded, both our own boys and the BLESSES of France. How brave she was, and how she hesitated at nothing, no matter how menial the task to help.

"There are many like her over here," he wrote, "but I tell you of her because you know her. The men all love her. They call her 'Little Mother' and she does mother them all, from bearded men to boys of seventeen, many of whom I strongly suspect, have lied about their ages to fight for Uncle Sam. But such lies will not be held against them should they go West now; or should they come through. Of that I am sure."

"I looked for a letter today, but none reached me. The mails are so uncertain that I am not blaming you, but them. I feel that there is a nice, long letter from you somewhere, waiting to be delivered to me, and I will try and possess my soul in patience until it appears. 'By the way, send me some chocolate next time I have found a chum over here whose sweet tooth beats anything I ever heard of. Send me a double measure if you expect me to get a single cake. His name is 'Henderson,' Larry, his first name. He has your address, so in case I am injured he will let you know. So unless you hear from him you may know that I am O. K. and loving you. Brian."

Tomorrow—Brian is Pleased That He Has a Son.

Too Easy. Newlywed (explaining poker)—"Now, if you get a poor hand you want to bluff, and if you get a good hand, you want to make a bluff that you're bluffing. Now there are two ways of bluffing: one is to bluff, the other not to bluff. If you're a regular bluffer, you can often bluff by not bluffing, and—" Mrs. Newlywed—"I see, John, dear, but that game is too ridiculously easy. Let's play checkers."

MOTORAIDS

Quite often a tire will give out when you are some distance from a garage and when you have no spare tubes or tires or no means of making repairs. To drive for any distance would ruin the tire and to drive on the rim might injure or even destroy the rim and wheel, to say nothing of the strain and jar on the car.

Rope or even old rags, wound about the rim will save a great deal of the jar, but a still better way is to use hay or straw. By twisting this in bunches and lashing it to the rim like a tire, you can protect the rim so thoroughly that it will be possible to drive many miles over fairly rough roads without danger of injury. If a good sized rope is used it will last for a long distance.

If the old casing is of no value, you may drive upon it flat, but you can save a great deal of the jar and jolt by stuffing the casing full of straw, hay, moss, or leaves and then placing it on the rim. Often times a casing treated this way, will be found uninjured after driving for many miles.

Leaks in radiators, water pipes or tanks may be repaired with ordinary chewing gum. The gum should be thoroughly masticated, placed over the leak and secured in place by means of tape. I have seen an iron water tank repaired in this manner which was rusted to pieces, before the chewing gum patch gave out.

Every motorist should carry several extra spark plugs with him, but now and then one is broken and the driver has no extra ones with him. Shellac will often repair a cracked or broken porcelain until you can reach a repair shop. Heat soon ruins the shellac, so the repair is only temporary. Sodium silicate or water glass will cement the porcelain firmly and will withstand a great deal of heat and pressure. Ordinary Portland cement also makes a strong cement but this takes a long time to harden. Broken porcelain may be temporarily repaired with plaster of Paris. Be sure it is hard and dry before using the plug.

Nowadays there is seldom need of repairing a plug, as nearly every country store keeps plugs on hand. Still there are many places where plugs cannot be obtained, and an emergency repair will often enable the motorist to reach a base of supplies.

FORMER XENIA MAN DROPS DEAD

Charles Bradley, of Dayton, former Xenian, dropped dead at the hotel where he was living at noon Thursday. Death was due to a sudden attack of apoplexy.

Mr. Bradley formerly lived here but had been living in Dayton for a number of years. He is survived by a little daughter, Mary, by a brother, Jesse S. Bradley of Cincinnati, and a sister, Mrs. Clarence Barnes of this city.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and burial was made in Woodland.

Booyed by Glorious Faith.

What a world were this; how unendurable its weight, if they whom death had sundered did not meet again!—Southey.

20 YEARS AGO

Fred, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Jno. O'Dea, has been quite sick for several days past.

Mr. Sam Williams, in charge of the Postal Telegraph office at Sandusky, is home for the holidays.

Dr. Amelia J. Pryor left on Friday evening for her new position at Huntington, W. Va., carrying with her the best wishes of a host of friends.

Mr. George Eckerle, of Jamestown, is spending the holiday vacation in Xenia, and is looking after the business at John Vanderpool's store, while the owner is in Indianapolis.

Mr. Lester John, who came home to spend the holidays, has been called back to Wooster to take charge of the bowling alley.

Xenia merchants generally feel good over the holiday trade.

Rev. Father Hoctor presented each of the members of St. Bridget's church with a copy of a history of the church, with a number of pictures.

Mr. Will Eichman of the Eavey Wholesale grocery, had a narrow escape from death when he accidentally drank a quantity of cyanide of potassium, mistaking it for water, while in the Grotendiek bakery. He was taken to the office of Dr. Brundage, who was assisted by Dr. Easley in resuscitating him by the use of the stomach pump.

LEO KILLEEN IS HOME FROM OVERSEAS

After seeing service overseas, Leo Killeen, of the medical section of the Third Hundred and Twentieth aero squadron has arrived in Xenia on a brief leave of absence, prior to being discharged from the service. Private Killeen is wearing two gold stripes for his year's service overseas. He will return to camp to be discharged.

Private Killeen's brother, James Killeen, who enlisted in the service when he was 15 years old, and was at the front, is now in the east convalescing from shell shock. He is 16 years old. The lad's father received a telegram Thursday from the commanding officer at Ft. Porter, Buffalo, N. Y., in answer to a message of inquiry regarding him. The message said that he was in good physical and mental condition and nearly well, and that he had been transferred to Plattsburg.

This May Help a Little.

If you live in a place where the landlord was looking the other way when they were handing out closets, you need not permanently despair. Take down the old piano box, turn it on its side, do it up and there you are. Turn the front of it into a door. Imagination hath no bounds for the decorating possibilities of the well-known piano box when it turns turtle in your bed chamber. You can cover it with burlap, cloth, wall paper or the pictures of your best friends in a loving remembrance.—Thrifty Magazine

HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

The following is the letter recently received by Mrs. C. L. Babb from her son Sergeant Elbert Babb, who is with the American Expeditionary Forces in France:

Thanksgiving Day,
Saumur, France.

Dear Mama:

The crowning event of this beautiful rainy day—dinner—is over and I am now in the mood to write a cheerful letter home regardless of the fact that the turkey was not with us. So the next day of importance upon our schedule is pay day which should not be very far distant.

Everybody here is restless and "up in the air," so to speak, because no more commissions will be awarded. The class that finished the past week after having spent twelve weeks here were denied commissions and it is doubtful if they will get them so there is practically no incentive to study as the war is over. All of the French instructors leave here December first.

But this is a pretty good place as the mud is nothing like it was at the front—so we have many things to be thankful for today.

As the censor has let down the bars, let me tell you about an air raid upon Verdun when we were inside the city walls. We were twenty trucks in convoy and I was sergeant in charge of B Company's allotment of five. We were loaded and on the way up to the batteries when the enormous searchlights began to play upon Jerry Boche's chariot up in the clouds and the anti-aircraft cut loose at him. We pulled up just inside the walls of the city close to the north gate—La Porte de France—shut off our motors and awaited developments which were not long coming. The warnings of the anti-aircraft are always sufficient and we were soon "comfortably" escorted on the rough paving stones under the truck. During the short lulls in the anti-aircraft fire, we could hear the ominous hum of the Boche motor high above us—there was only one—and it was just a few seconds until he cut loose a bomb which fell just outside the walls close to the railroad tracks. The next one fell inside the walls about 200 meters from us and in a few seconds I heard something falling close to us among some trees. The first thing I thought of was shell or bomb fragments—a nice souvenir of a Verdun air raid—so I crawled "out from under" and started feeling around for a souvenir, holding my hand just close enough to the ground to feel the heat of the "fragments."

By this time it was 10:30. Jerry had dropped four fit all and had started for another load. I felt around for my "souvenir" and finally put my hand on something which made me jump for a second. It wasn't hot but prickly; the detonation of the second bomb had knocked some buckeyes from the tree nearest us and there was the pod half open and a shiny buckeye inside. Jerry will never kill a son of the Buckeye State with a volley of buckeyes, so I am keeping it as a souvenir of his blockhead methods. We delivered our ammunition and that load was not in the least wasted. This happened on Saturday night, October 12.

In my next letter I'll tell you how easy it is to cross the Meuse river on a bridge at which Jerry is shooting.

It may be possible for us to retain our gas masks and tin hats (Carnegie Stetsons,) as souvenirs to take home. I surely hope so because they both have been "friends in need."

Let me tell you about my first night on the front: It was in the Argonne close to the little village of Brabant en Argonne. Motor Battalion Headquarters had been established there that day, before our outfit had arrived. And as I happened to be at the front two days before the company arrived, Lieut. Lockwood sent me down the road one night to direct the trucks in case they should arrive during the night. It was moonlight but very chilly and raw. There was not much activity on the front and I amused myself by counting the seconds between the flashes and reports of a big German gun across the lines. As sound travels 1162 feet per second and the report followed the flash by 37 seconds, it is very easy to compute the distance so I thought my job for the evening would be both instructive and entertaining.

I was sitting on the side of a quaint stone bridge over Cousance creek counting seconds on my watch when Jerry began all at once to dump gas into the valley and the gas alarms—sirens and rifle shots—came toward me down the valley. This was something I had not counted on and there I was, all alone and had never been through real gas. So I put my mask on carefully and walked along the road to the top of the hill and took it off; in about a half hour I walked back again to my seat on the bridge and repeated the performance twice again that night. The joke of the whole performance was that the trucks did not come.

Until my company arrived in Brabant I had plenty to eat because the 322nd Supply Co. was there and Mess Sergeant Clemmer of little old X. was all attention. It was here also that I saw Francis Tarrell and Curtis Geyer.

I have managed to keep a collection of post cards together but fear that they will be lost if I send them home by mail so will try to keep them myself rather than to take a chance on losing them.

I made up my mind not to be a souvenir hunter because you cannot carry much surplus baggage around with you and not lose it. Uncle Sam gives you plenty to carry. I know a fellow who bought a German Leuger (pistol) for 200 francs as a souvenir and then had to turn it in as salvage. Deux cent francs allez, toute de suite; mauvais chance. C'est la guerre.

Last Sunday afternoon I visited the old castle here that is centuries old. It is on a high promontory and you can see a great distance up and down the Loire. Part of it is now used as a museum while there are other rooms devoted to paintings and sculpture. Saumur is a city of some consequence as far as mediaeval history is concerned. (You will surely be able to find some space given it in the encyclopaedia Britannica.)

Will close for the present to take a walk down town in the rain.

I hope Thanksgiving was a pleasant day at home. And in future anniversaries of this great day, I know one member of the family who will willingly take dark meat, neck, wing or feathers.

Everything is all O. K.
Loveingly,
ELBERT.

IDEAL guardians of the home!

Paris, Oct. 3.—A cable from America says that instead of turning swords into plowshares, the manufacturers are turning radiators into grenades and shells. Apartment and home dwellers earnestly hope that after the war the American Radiator Company will return to making boilers and radiators, which are equally hot stuff.

—From The Stars and Stripes, Army Newspaper.

Iron was so greatly needed for munitions for Our Boys that we stopped pushing the sale and manufacture of IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators. Now with the ending of the War, coal economy again becomes the most urgent need and duty of all.

AMERICAN & IDEAL
RADIATORS & BOILERS

With IDEAL-AMERICAN heating there is no need to burn high priced coal

IDEAL Boilers hold enough coal to last 24 hours. All IDEAL Boilers are or may be fitted with an ARCO Temperature Regulator which automatically controls the draft- and check-dampers—giving you little to liberal amount of heat to suit quick weather changes. Stops all fuel waste and saves "minding the fire," poking, and the fussing that is the aggravation of old-fashioned heating devices.

Today's ideal bargain in heating

IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators free you from the ancient yoke of bod-lifting, fire-poking, ash-sifting, coal-gas breathing, blackening, annual storing, repair bills, fire-risk, etc. In all the world they have no equal—hence their use in over a million stores, schools, churches, offices, public buildings, farm and city homes, old or new, at home and abroad. Money put into these outfits is an investment—not an expense. Accept no substitute! No higher than asked for ordinary makes. Fully guaranteed.

To secure 5700 winter hours yearly of IDEAL heating comfort and economy, and to guard your home forever, ask for book (free) "Ideal Heating." Phone your local dealer today for estimate. Put in quickly without tearing up or disturbing present heater until ready to start fire in the IDEAL.

IDEAL Boilers have large fuel pots in which the air and coal gases thoroughly mix as in a modern gas or oil furnace of burner, thus extracting every bit of the heat from the fuel. Easier to run than a stove.

Word has been received by friends here that Miss Zoraida Lorimer, daughter of Dr. Lorimer, formerly of Jamestown, but now of Ordway, Col., left for France the 12th of September, for social reconstruction work, under the American Red Cross. WAR SAVINGS STAMPS FOR 1919 TO BE BLUE

Ohio Committee Making Plans For New Campaign.

Columbus, O.—(Special).—The director of the Ohio War Savings Committee has been called to Washington for a conference with federal reserve bank representatives to outline plans for the 1919 War Savings campaign. This will be conducted quite as vigorously as has been the 1918 campaign.

Ohio's quota for next year will be the same as that for 1918. Congress has authorized a new issue of $2,000,000,000, of which Ohio's share will be practically $106,000,000.

Definite announcement of the 1919 campaign program in this state will be forthcoming soon. From Washington has come details concerning the mechanical features of the new series of stamps.

The War Savings Stamps are about two-thirds the size of the 1918 issue; are blue, instead of green, and bear the portrait of Benjamin Franklin, the apostle of thrift.

The 25-cent Thrift Stamps will be the same as those now in use. Incomplete Thrift Cards can be finished after the first of the year by purchase and addition to the cards of the required number of Thrift Stamps. The exchangeable features in reference to War Savings Stamps remain the same.

A change has been made in the 1919 War Savings certificate folder. Instead of being double, like the 1918 folder, it is a single folder, and smaller in size.

Caution should be exercised in not pasting the War Savings Stamps of the 1918 series on the 1919 certificate.

War Savings Stamps of 1919 series mature Jan. 1, 1924. Those of the 1918 issue will be redeemed by the government on Jan. 1, 1922.

LITTLE JOKE IS PULLED ON FRIENDS BY FRED C. KELLY

J. M. Allison, New York correspondent for the Cincinnati Times Star, amusingly tells in his column in the Times Star a story concerning a joke that Fred C. Kelly, former Xenian, pulled on a number of his New York friends. The story follows:

There may be those who fear the danger of carrying a joke too far, but Fred C. Kelly, journalist and magazine writer, is not among them. At least there are fourteen people in New York who will agree that he doesn't know where to stop in his habitual fooling. They'll get over their mad, in time, of course, but, at present, Mr. Kelly is not popular with them.

Mr. Kelly, whose irrepressible sense of humor is indicated by the fact that he always mentions with an air of pride that he came from Xenia, Ohio, has recently been one of the representatives in New York City of the Federal Department of Justice. He became a dollar-a-year man among the first explaining with great satisfaction that, at last, he could feel that he was earning his pay. Since his assignment here he has lived at the McAlpin. Last week he informed Mr. O. O. McIntyre, formerly of Cincinnati, that he wished to give a farewell dinner in celebration of his resignation from the Government employ and his return to Washington and work. He nominated Mr. McIntyre as invitation committee and said that the guests ought to number about fourteen. Dinner, he said, would be served in a first-floor dining room at the Ritz.

As the result of Mr. McIntyre's activities, a distinguished party of fourteen, all in very special evening clothes, assembled to enjoy Mr. Kelly's hospitality at the resort of New York's most elaborate dressers. They assembled at the McAlpin, as Mr. Kelly, through his invitation committee, had suggested. Among them were Chief DeWoody of the Department of Justice, Arthur Sommers Roche, Miss Nevada McMein, Bide Dudley, Karl K. Kitchen and other well-known people whom Mr. McIntyre had discriminatively selected for the honor of an invitation.

When Mr. Kelly appeared to take charge of his guests, none could have been more resplendent in attire than he, with broad expanse of shirt front, top hat and fur lined coat. He led the way to a waiting line of chartered limousines. To the driver of the first he said: "And now to the Ritz." A few minutes later the party drew up in front of a dirty-spoon restaurant in Third avenue, which had, above its door, a dimly-lighted sign reading "The Ritz." Within, in a back room, were fourteen chairs around a table. A bottle-brow waiter with an adonoidal expression served ham and beans and coffee and toothpicks. In the face of an indignant and vituperative outburst from his guests in festive array, Mr. Kelly laughed contentedly and insisted that it was positively the funniest thing he had ever done.

"D'ye mean to say, that you're going to take us to the Ritz now and give us a dinner to square yourself?" asked Mr. McIntyre, committee on invitation.

"O, gosh no!" exclaimed Mr. Kelly.

"That would spoil the whole thing." So Mr. McIntyre took the party up to the Majestic, where he writes the press notices and can charge dinner checks to the publicity account.

Bruges' Sacred Relic.

In Bruges, Belgium, is a reminder of the past, the chapel of the Holy Blood, built by Theodorie, a distinguished crusader, who, on his return from the holy land, brought with him, so the legend says, some drops of the holy blood of the Savior, which had been preserved by Joseph of Arimathea. Whether the legend is true or not, the Church of Saint Sang, with its dainty little oratory, bears testimony to the belief of the people of that time.

PUBLIC SALE advertising in the Gazette and Republican bring the crowds. In the days of automobiles, the farmer has no time to stop along the road to read sale bills. He is coming to depend upon these papers to notify him of the sale dates and articles to be offered for sale. It's the buyer from a distance who sees ad in this paper and jumps in to his auto and hustles to your sale,
who pays what your stuff is worth.
Your neighbor no longer can stand around and pick off the whole goods at an absurd price, as he does when you have not properly advertised.
Send your ad to the Xenia Gazette

the worth of everything you offer.

Considers Recovery Remarkable

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 14—For almost six years I suffered from a severe case of skin trouble which began with swelling and intense pain in my knee. Then my leg became inflamed and sores broke out which itched and burned terribly day and night. I tried many remedies, but gained no relief.
I even spent six months in the hospital, and the doctors wanted to amputate my leg. At last I tried Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and obtained relief from the first application. My knee is now well, and I consider the cure remarkable, as my trouble was very serious. (Signed)

When "Jack" Is Abroad.

The name Jack or John is a very common one and seems to be found in general use in many countries. True it is not spelled and pronounced as we use it in America, however, it means the same thing and the "Jack"
of our United States will be "Johann" in Bohemia or Sweden, "Jaos" in Portugal, "Jean" in France, "Hans," or
"Johannes" in Holland and Germany,
"Juan" in Cuba, "Giovanni" in Italy,
"Ivan" in Russia, "Jan" in Poland, and

THE DOLT

By ARLINE A. MACDONALD.

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

If Richard Doe had not been a poor dolt he would never have been a good soldier.

At least, so Richard himself expressed it in a letter that Abe Walton, the town clerk, received back home
from "somewhere in France."

The young soldier had been the recipient of a number of congratulatory missives consequent upon a published account of his acts of heroism and daring on the western front. And the youth had read them modestly and had penned a solitary reply to Abe Walton at Kensington, knowing that Abe would take it in turn to the respective villagers. And Abe did.

Now young Doe had never borne an enviable name in the village. Tall and handsome, he regularly joined the "hangers on" about the general store, working at nothing, and giving but little promise of ever doing anything else. He made a fit subject for the gossips, of which there were many.

Nevertheless, Richard Doe was always certain that he possessed certain latent qualities which ought to be made patent. They needed only a time of trial to bring out their grit and pi-liability. And the time came, and Ruth Walton was responsible for it.

Ruth was the only daughter of Abe Walton, and a teacher in the village school. She was a tall, slender girl, scarcely out of her teens, whose face was one of those quite as striking for its character as its beauty.

She admired Doe, liked him for his sympathetic understanding of his fellow human beings, his sense of the dramatic, his untrammelled flow of words, which were the best perquisites of his friendship for a girl in her profession. Once he had proved her for overdancing and had brusquely turned from Tom Whitney's proffered cigarette case. It was at the supper table that Ruth had said:

"Dick lacks the 'pep' that characterizes the modern young man. He does not smoke, he does not dance. He's too handsome to work. He's a dolt."

One day, in desperation, Doe decided that he would force the attention of the village upon his talent. He whispered something into the ear of Abe Walton, who had already given the youth a big corner in his own heart. The next morning he dropped quaintly out of the village and the tongues of the gossips wagged furiously.
Mrs. H—, who never meddled with anyone's affairs, reminded the neighbors that a year before she had said that Richard Doe would disappear some day and would turn up later in a penitentiary. "As for Abe Walton," she declared, "he has yielded his energy to the hypnotic influence of that loafer scoundrel."

It was true that Doe's departure gave Abe more energy. He quickly got a contract from a New York journal for the erection of a pretentious stucco mansion on the knoll adjoining his own homestead.

Time passed quickly at Kensington.
June came and the robins' piped their sweetest lay, and the odor of the rose and the honeysuckle stole through screened chamber windows. At the close of a balmy afternoon Ruth Walton sat alone in her own boudoir reading a war story which appeared in the newspaper.

Suddenly she remembered that there was a dance that evening in the pavillion. She arose, rubbed her face, which seemed drawn and bloodless,
and hastened below to prepare the evening meal.

The dance had never seemed so pretty and overcrowded. Nell Whitney, in a flurry of excitement, made some complimentary remarks about Ruth's dress.

"Richard Doe is here," she said.
"And oh, isn't it dreadful, Ruth?" she gasped, "his left arm has been shot off!"

"This was too much for Ruth. In the stupor which almost held her brain in thrill she heard a faint "Where's Ruth?" as she tottered to the road that led to Kensington knoll.

Her hands wavered; her knees shook at footsteps she knew only too well.
"Go! Go back, Richard!" she screamed. "Forgive me, I can't bear to look at you. Your arm!" she gasped.

"It isn't as bad as you think, Ruth," catching her arm and trying to comfort her. "See!"

Deliberately he unbuttoned his frock, discussing a whole arm suspended in a slung.

"Force of habit," he laughed as he buttoned his coat this time with the arm outside. His joviality lapsed her to a steady calm. A thrill of pleasure surmounted her being as once again he took her hand. A fresh June zephyr swept the fragrant pine across the knoll, where, sitting against the open sky, a stately mansion bathed in a flood of silvery moonlight.

"It's yours, Ruth. I did it for you,"
he whispered.

A solitary tear of joy stood on the cheek of the girl, who hid her face on the breast of the

HOTEL ORDERED CLOSED BY STATE HEALTH BOARD

That the plumbing and water system of the Grand Hotel has been condemned and that the hostelry will have to be closed until the system is repaired and improved, is the substance of a report of the Plumbing Department of the State Board of Health received by City Manager Riddle and presented at the regular meeting of the City Commissioners Thursday night.

The report is the result of the regular inspection by representatives of the State Department, who found that the plumbing system and water supply is unsanitary and ordered that the hotel be closed until repairs are made to comply with the state code. The communication was addressed to Mr. Riddle as head of the local health board and it is thought that the board here will set a date by which time the hostelry must have complied with the order. The hotel is managed by C. H. Neil and the building is the property of H. E. Schmidt.

City Manager Riddle addressed the commission on the water works question showing what could be saved under public ownership of the water works, but the commission took no action in the case awaiting the report of the committee appointed to investigate by the Xenia Business Men's Association. According to Mr. Riddle under public ownership the operating expenses would be $7,000 a year less operating the plant as it is now. With new equipment, Mr. Riddle says that $10,000 more could be saved, making a total of $17,000 that could be saved under public ownership.

The difference between what the city day.

has paid as a public service charge and that they are ordered to pay is $25 a day, and according to the City Manager the city is going to debt this amount every day. Mr. Riddle made public also the result of the 96 questionnaires he sent out to other cities, which showed that the larger per cent of these cities have no charge for public service while the charge here is $15,000 a year.

If the report of the investigation committee from the Business Men's Association is favorable to public ownership, city will probably secure a consulting engineer to come here and conduct an investigation to substantiate the figures compiled by Manager Riddle before the question is put up to the city.

The ordinance No. 50, regulating the firemen's salaries was read for the second time and passed. Other routine business was transacted at the meeting.

The decorations were in the Christmas colors, red and green. There were covers for eighteen. After dinner, the guests spent the evening with their host and hostess and they enjoyed Victrola music. Out of town guests were Mrs. Greene's mother and sister, Mrs. Samuel Feaster and Miss Lucille Feaster of Springfield and Mrs. William Scott and daughter, Miss Helen of Dayton.

DETECTIVES INVESTIGATE ROBBERIES

An investigation in thefts and robberies from articles shipped by American Express to local consignees is being conducted by Special Investigator of the American Express Company, acting in conjunction with Route Agent H. B. Grosbeck, who has been acting as agent here in the absence of Agent Leslie L. Jordan, who has been ill.

The investigation grew out of numerous complaints alleging thefts of all or part of shipments received here, a number of merchants being victimized, the thieving being particularly vicious during the last few months. Losses amounting to several hundred dollars in stolen and damaged goods, have been reported.

Charles Mangum, arrested two months ago, and sent to the work house under a fine of $25 and costs, on the charge of loitering when it was alleged he attempted to break open a shipment at the depot office of the express company, has since been more deeply implicated in the affair. It is now thought that he had a hand in the theft of about $100 worth of Manhattan shirts from a consignment to the Criterion clothing store. Mangum is now in the work house and has not been brought to trial on the new charge.

It is hoped that the activity of the Express Company investigators will apprehend the thief or thieves and break up the systematic stealing that has been victimizing Xenia merchants.

CONTINUE HEARING OF ENGINEER'S REPORT

Hearing of the engineer's report on the work known as the Shepard ditch improvement, which was ordered by the Appellate Court, was continued by the county commissioners Thursday, until Jan. 2. The Shepard ditch is a part of the Beaver Creek ditch improvement. The Court of Appeals ordered the building of two retaining walls and the filling up of the old channel of Gray's run, emptying into Beaver Creek. The engineer's estimated cost of the improvement is over $6,000. Property owners against whom the costs are assessed, are very much opposed to the improvement.

Angelina Cline daughter of John Wesley and Mary Elizabeth Webb, was born near Washington C. H., May 5, 1868. Departed this life Dec. 10, 1918, aged 50 years, 7 months and 5 days.

She was the second in a family of nine children. Her father and two infant sisters preceded her to the better world. On Jan. 20, 1884, she was united in marriage to Austin E. Cline, and for almost thirty four years they shared together the joys and sorrows of life. To this happy union was born one daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Woods. To her she was a most devoted and indulgent mother. Those who knew Anna best, loved her most. Her kindness and good advice will never be forgotten by her many friends. Her disposition was domestic and she performed the duties of home-making faithfully—her cozy little home and family meant everything to her.

She was converted during a series of meetings held by C. C. Peele, in the winter of 1899. Although for several years ill health deprived her of attending church services, she never lost interest in reading the sacred word. Her pure and beautiful christian character, exhibited in her daily life, was a constant testimony to the living, that she was ready to go—only waiting the call of God.

Besides her husband and daughter, she leaves an aged mother five brothers, one sister and three grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss.

In the home she will be greatly missed. No more will be heard her greetings of good cheer. Though painful is the parting, yet there is consolation in the assurance, she is waiting on the other shore, and asked all to meet her there.

Dear loved one we miss thee,
Since from us thou art gone
And we long for thy presence
Again in our home,
But we would call thee—not back
From thy blissful abode,
To travel again, o'er life's thorny road.
While ours is the sadness, the sorrow
and pain
Thine is the triumph, the joy and the gain.

CARD OF THANKS.
We desire to express our heart-felt thanks to our many friends and neighbors the Aid Society, for the floral offering, the singers and the pastor for his consoling words during the sickness and death of our loved one.

Miss Anna E. Chambliss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Chambliss of West Second street, became the bride of Claude C. Loveless, in a quiet service which took place at parsonage of the First Baptist church Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, the Rev. Albert Read officiating.

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thomas Moore. The bride was attractively gowned in rose taupe silk, with hat and shoes of the same shade. Mrs. Moore was attired in brown taffeta. The ring service was used in uniting the young pair. Following the service they went to their newly furnished home in the Croy apartments on West Second street. Mr. Loveless is a bookkeeper at the P. C. C. and St. L. Railway station.

The Razor in Civilization.

Customs of the Cherokees show them to have been clean-shaven. Men in the eighteenth century relied still further on the barber's art, for they shaved their heads as well. Hogarth has painted a head of this period who by some chance had his wig removed, which gives him the look of an elderly baby. The uncouth appearance of the barbarians, which shocked the Romans, was due a good deal to the neglect of these wild men to dress their hair.
